Elixir will review and analyze existing campaigns to find what is working well and what is not. After a detailed analysis, the finest technical talent will create customized campaigns to meet your goals. I think this would come in handy when it comes to organizing your ppc campaigns because you get to the point where you sign up to so many different companies that you lose track.

Have you used Elixer, Willable? If so I would be interested to know if you are getting any real return at all.

I totally agree and have done exactly that several years ago. An automated tracking system of any type would help tremendously.

Elixir brought up my traffic by 10 percent a few months after I joined them so I can actually say yes they are reliable and worthy of your time if you are in need of help.
